

TED AND TOM

AND THE

TALL, TALL

PEAK

by Jenny
Phillips

THE GOOD AND THE BEAUTIFUL LIBRARY

Ted and Tom are bored.

“Let’s make a sled,” says Ted.

They get two big boxes.

They get a lot of stuff.

Mom helps the two boys.

The sled is done,
and the boys get in.

The boys wave to their mom. “We will be back,” they say.

The sled is at the top of a tall, tall peak.

A whimsical winter scene with snow falling. The sky is dark with large, dark, stylized clouds. The landscape is covered in snow, with several green, stylized evergreen trees of various sizes. There are also small, yellow, tuft-like plants and some small brown rocks scattered across the snow. In the upper left, a few small black birds are flying. The overall atmosphere is serene and wintry.

The boys hear the wind. They see dark clouds.

“Let’s go,” says Tom.

“A storm is on its way,
so we need to get off
this peak.”

The sled starts
down the steep hill.